

Debasis Nayak

Debasis Nayak is managing partner, Techjuris Law Consultants. He is also Honorary Director and co-founder of Asian School of Cyber Laws, which is the pioneering institute in providing education, training and consultancy in cyber law and cyber crime in India. He specializes in cyber law and intellectual property issues.

He is a visiting faculty on cyber law and cyber crime investigation at the National Police Academy, Hyderabad. He has taught cyber law at numerous educational institutions across India including the Government Law College, Mumbai, the Post Graduate Teaching Department of Law, Nagpur and the Benarus Hindu University, Varanasi.

He has trained various law enforcement agencies in cyber crime investigation including personnel from Governments of Malaysia and Mauritius. He has also been involved in the activity of framing draft rules and regulations under the Information Technology Act, 2000 for the Department of Information Technology, Government of India.

His other areas of interest include the legal regime regulating online gaming, copyright issues relating to software, implementation of public key infrastructure and cyber forensics. He is a consultant to corporate organizations, law enforcement agencies and governments on these issues.

Some Publications

Co-authored the "Cyber Crime Investigation Manual" - Published by ASCL academy in 2003.

"Intellectual property law and cyberspace" - Paper presented at the seminar on intellectual property rights conducted by the Department of Civics and Politics, University of Mumbai in 2006.

"Cyber Law – International Perspective" – Published by Asian School of Cyber Laws in 2006.

"(Amen!)dments to the IT Act" – Article published by Network Magazine, February 2007, available at <http://www.networkmagazineindia.com/200702/focus01.shtml>